GUIDE

FOR FOREIGN CITIZENS

Welcome!

The Yaroslavl Region is a place where history and culture merge into one.
We are proud that people of various nationalities live here.
This diversity is our wealth, and mutual understanding and respect for each other form the basis of the well-being and unity of the Yaroslavl Region.

Every resident, regardless of origin, contributes to creating a strong and stable society based on mutual respect and friendship.
Together, we can achieve great success and overcome any difficulties encountered along our way.

How to Behave
in Russia

Any foreign citizen entering Russia receives a migration card. It is highly recommended to state «Work» as the purpose of travel in the migration card.

After arriving in Russia, a foreign citizen should proceed to the location of the host party to:

Register with the migration authorities

Prepare documents

Conclude an employment contract

Upon arriving in Russia, a foreign citizen must register for migration control.
The timeframes for registration are as follows:
90 calendar days from the day of entry – for citizens of Belarus, highly qualified specialists (HQS), and their family members.
30 calendar days from the day of crossing the border – for citizens of the EAEU (Armenia, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan).
15 calendar days from the moment of crossing the border – for citizens of Uzbekistan or Tajikistan.
7 working days – for citizens of other countries (the countdown starts the day following the date of entry recorded in the migration card).

The host party can be:
– An owner of residential premises;
– A legal entity;
– A state authority or an international organization that provides accommodation.

Registration for Migration Control

The validity period of a migration card is determined by the foreigner's permitted period of stay in Russia. For citizens of visa-free countries, it is up to 90 days per calendar year.

Upon expiration of this period, you can extend the migration card based on:

- An employment contract (for a term of no more than 1 year);
- The issuance or extension of a work permit;
- The issuance, extension, or renewal of a work patent;
- The processing of a Temporary Residence Permit or a Residence Permit;
- The submission of documents for citizenship of the Russian Federation;
- Participation in the state program for the resettlement of compatriots;
- An inability to leave due to health conditions.

The host party compiles a package of documents and submits them to process the migration registration. The notification of arrival at the place of stay is reviewed within 1 working day.

The detachable part of the arrival notification, stamped by the authority that accepted the document, serves as official confirmation of the foreign citizen's migration registration in Russia.

A work patent is a document that:

– Grants a foreign citizen or stateless person who arrived in Russia on a visa-free basis the right to work for an individual or a legal entity;
– Allows the holder to work only in the profession specified in it;
– Is valid only within the specific region of Russia where it was obtained;
– Is issued only to foreign citizens who have reached the age of 18

A work patent can be extended multiple times but has a limited maximum validity period of up to 12 months. Payment must be made in advance for each month of the patent's validity. If the patent tax payment is not processed before the specified due date, the patent will immediately cease to be valid!

OBTAINING A WORK PATENT

The deadline for submitting documents for a work patent is 30 days from the moment of entry into Russia.

A work patent is issued within 10 working days from the date of submission of all documents, or within 5 working days if the foreign citizen already has a Taxpayer Identification Number (INN).

Documents required for patent application:

– Application for patent issuance;
– Passport (and its photocopy);
– One 3x4 cm color photo (matte);
– Notification of migration registration and its photocopy;
– Notarized Russian translation of the passport;
– Migration card with an entry stamp and its photocopy;
– Medical examination certificate (the mandatory medical examination must be completed within 30 days of entry);
– Certificate confirming the absence of HIV infection;
– Voluntary medical insurance policy;
– Certificate of Russian language proficiency, history, and basic laws;
– Receipt confirming the advance tax payment under the patent (NDFL).

* - a photocopy is provided at the request of the foreign citizen

An employment contract is an official agreement between an employee and an employer that establishes their mutual rights and obligations. Such contracts can be concluded with either an individual or a company.

The employment contract must specify:

Terms of remuneration and the exact wage amount;

The working hours and schedule;

The procedure and deadlines for wage payments;

The possibility of performing work in another organization.

Employee Rights:

– To refuse to perform work dangerous to life and health;
– To refuse work not specified in the employment contract;
– To suspend work if wages are delayed for more than 15 days (a prior written notice must be submitted to the employer);
– To demand a copy of the employment contract, pay slips, and salarycertificates.

Employer Obligations:

– To pay your wages in full without any unauthorized delays or deductions;
– To provide a safe workplace and the specific work defined in the employment contract;
– To extend the period of your temporary stay in Russia for the duration of the work patent;
– To inform you about your job description and work schedule.

Important: Within 2 months after receiving the patent, the foreign citizen must submit a notification of labor activity to the migration authority, attaching a copy of the concluded employment contract.

Employee Obligations:

– To conscientiously fulfill the terms of the employment contract;
– To notify the employer in writing about resignation at least 14 days in advance;
– To comply with internal labor regulations and workplace safety rules;
– To take care of the employer's property and inventory;
– To immediately inform the employer about any situations that pose a threat to life and health.

Violations of migration legislation:

– Staying in Russia without valid identification or status documents;
– Violation of migration registration rules;
– Working without a valid patent;
– Working under a patent issued for another region or a different profession;
– Failure to meet the deadlines for patent processing;
– Staying in Russia after the expiration date of your documents.

Administrative liability:

– Violations of public order;
– Use of profanity in public places;
– Offensive harassment of citizens.

Note: In the Yaroslavl Region, it is strictly prohibited to make noise from 13:00 to 15:00 and from 22:00 to 6:00 (during the summer period from June 1 to August 31 – from 23:00 to 6:00).

Criminal liability:

– Vandalism;
– Infliction of severe or moderate bodily harm;
– Vehicle theft, larceny, robbery;
– Extortion;
etc.

TYPES OF LIABILITY

Russia is a state governed by the rule of law, where laws apply and must be observed by everyone. Depending on the severity of the violation, you may face various types of legal liability.

Types of legal penalties and measures:

	✓		Administrative arrest
		✓	Criminal arrest
✓	✓		Administrative expulsion from Russia
		✓	Deportation
		✓	Imprisonment
		✓	Entry ban to the Russian Federation
	✓		Compulsory works
✓	✓	✓	Fines

Observe the Laws
Russia is a state where all problems can be solved through legal means: there is no need to give bribes, "make deals," or look for unofficial connections. As long as we all observe the laws, these laws will protect us in difficult situations.

Respect Elders
In Russia, it is customary to listen to elders and help them: consider their advice, and give up your seat on public transport or in a queue. This applies not only to age but also to professional status. If someone older or superior at work addresses you, try to listen to them respectfully.

Be Restrained in Expressing Emotions
In Russia, people often say that "happiness loves silence." But this is not because Russians are unwilling to share their happiness—on the contrary, it is customary to share it with those closest to you. Everyone else does not necessarily need to know about it, as they have their own concerns and problems. After all, a passerby on the street might only get upset because they are not as happy as you are. Therefore, try not to show your emotions too strongly so as not to disturb those around you.

Be Polite and Ready to Help
Everyone experiences difficulties—it is inevitable. In Russia, residents are ready to help anyone, especially if they are politely asked to do so. Therefore, if you find yourself in a difficult situation, simply ask those around you for help, and they will not refuse you. Just make sure to ask politely and use the formal form of address ("Vy"), and everything will surely turn out fine.

Respect the Comfort of Others
In Russia, personal space and comfort are highly valued, so if someone violates them, residents may express dissatisfaction. Therefore, it is not customary to speak loudly in public places, listen to music without headphones, push, or crowd others. Try to avoid doing this, and you will see how people's attitude toward you changes for the better.

Respect Other Cultures
Russia is a multi-ethnic country where many cultures have intertwined into one. Russians are ready to treat other cultures with respect, but only if you do the same. There are many important holidays, memorials, and traditions that are very dear to us. Treat them with respect, and your own traditions will be treated with respect as well.
